Deadline Nears For Registration

Greenbelters wishing to vote in the primary on Tuesday, February 12 must register by Tuesday, January 22 at 9 p.m. in order to qualify to vote. Seventeen-year-olds who are registered and will be 18 by November 4 may vote in the primary.

Voter registration applications are available at the following locations: Motor Vehicle Administration offices, state Department of Health offices, local Departments on Aging, the Division of Rehabilitation Services, public institutions of higher education, marriage license bureaus, post offices, public libraries, county boards of elections and the state board of elections.

A citizen may also download a voter registration application from the website of the Maryland State Board of Elections at <http://www.elections.state.md.us> or call the Prince George's County Board of Elections at 301-430-8020 to request an application. The latter should be returned to the Board of Elections, 16201 Trade Zone Avenue, Suite 108, Upper Marlboro, MD 20774.

Greenbelt East Precinct Split

Greenbelt city staff has learned that due to increased registration in Greenbelt East, the county has split election precinct 21-13 into two precincts with different polling places, creating a fifth precinct within the city, 21-18. Voter registration in the new precinct is 2,377; in precinct 21-13, 2,210. The change affects voters living in Greenbelt East – all that part of the city east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Capital Beltway and north of Good Luck Road. Affected households have been mailed cards providing information about the changes.

Precinct 13

Precinct 13 contains all of Greenbriar Condominiums, Greenwood Village and Glen Oaks to the north of Greenbelt Road. To the south of Greenbelt Road, the new boundaries of Precinct 13 follow Hanover Parkway south to Ora Glen Drive, then east on Ora Glen Drive to the end at Mandan Road and then back to Greenbelt Road. The centers of the streets listed are the dividing

Freecycle Creates Circle Of Giving in Greenbelt

by Anne Gardner

Are you longing to declutter your house? Do you need to get rid of that old couch, the piano you never play, those outgrown baby clothes or the half-box of teabags you never really liked? Don't leave it all at the curb! There are people out there who would love to give your trash a good home; you can find them through your local Freecycle Yahoo email group.

The Freecycle network started in 2003 in Tucson with the aim of reducing waste and landfills in the downtown area. Now over 4,000 local Freecycle groups exist all over the world, connecting people who want to get rid of stuff with people who need things but do not want to buy them new. The more than 3.5 million members simply post "OFFER" or "WANTED" email messages then wait to be contacted by other interested members.

One Freecycle moderator called it a "Circle of Giving," where you give a gift to others in the community while clearing out your clutter and helping the environment at the same time.

A volunteer moderates each local group, making sure everyone follows the rules. Basically everything has to be 100 percent free with no strings attached, legal and appropriate for all ages. Freecycle is not about getting as much free stuff as possible and it is not a charity. It is a way of reducing waste and extending the usefulness of things by giving gifts to people.

The Greenbelt Freecycle group was started in October 2004 by Jane L. (who prefers not to give her full name). She had just moved to the Greenbelt area from Baltimore and since there

DeMarr Historical Library Comes to New Home Here

by Virginia Beauchamp

By his own account, the late Frederick S. DeMarr, for whom the Prince George's County Historical Library is named, was a 10th-generation citizen of the county. Against such a record Greenbelt is indeed an infant. But sometime this spring the library, which bears his name and which he founded, will contribute its important collection of county history to this city when it takes occupancy of a lower-level two-room suite in the Greenbelt Library.

Currently open to the public on Saturday afternoons at Marietta Mansion on Bell Station Road, the library is a repository of manuscripts, ledgers, letters, scrapbooks, old newspapers and other memorabilia collected by DeMarr which offer a window into the history of this region. According to Jane Eagan Dodd, former president of the Prince George's County Historical Society, DeMarr was "the collector of all collectors."

Born in Mount Rainier and later raised in Berwyn, DeMarr served as president of the historical society from 1972 to 1984. In 1991 he was honored as Prince Georgian of the Year by the county government and the county Chamber of Commerce. He was noted at that time for creating in the library "a county treasure," as an advisor to the Prince George's Jaycees during their restoration of the George Washington House in Bladensburg and as an early member of the Prince George's County Historical and Cultural Trust.

I came to know him on Saturday afternoons at the Historical Society library when I was in the process of writing a history of the county during the county's tricentennial year, 1996. The library contained shelves of books, of course, relating to the history of Maryland and of nearby regions but it was also full of dozens of cardboard boxes of old newspapers and assorted records DeMarr was always trying to get a handle on.

Unluckily – or luckily for others – he was frequently distracted from his work in sorting through these materials by the needs of persons attracted to the library by their own interests in aspects of county history or of those who had lived here. He loved nothing better than to share his infinite knowledge of our region with

Local Student Recognized For Winning Art Contest

Greenbelt resident Linda Kuo was recognized on Monday, January 14 by the Greenbelt City Council for her first-place winning entry in a contest held last fall by the Washington Post. The Post asked students ages 5 to 12 to submit original artworks that show the pleasures of reading. Kuo's artwork was published on the cover of the December 9 edition of the Post's Book World section, which was devoted to children's literature (see accompanying photo).

In addition to gracing the cover of Book World with her art, the Post also gave Kuo a bag full of books. The Greenbelt City Council presented her with a T-shirt depicting the Greenbelt arts program and a certificate for free participation at an arts program function. Kuo attended the council meeting with her parents and younger brother Leo.

Kuo is in the 4th grade at Greenbelt Elementary School. Her art interest manifested itself at around age two and was encouraged by her mother, who is also an artist.

those who expressed an interest in some aspect or other within this body of knowledge.

DeMarr was indispensable as a resource for the Tricentennial celebration, as many of us came to learn during monthly plan-ning sessions for that year-long celebration. He had also become indispensable as an employee at the University of Maryland from which he graduated years ago and where he ended his career as an assistant administrator of the Stamp Student Union. He served in that capacity from 1970 until September 1997 when he died from an apparent heart attack.

He is memorialized most fit-tingly in the library whose col-lection he began and that will be moving here to Greenbelt.

GAC's New Play Reinvents Shakespeare's Life Story

by Carol Griffith

Suppose William Shakespeare was really an illiterate country bumpkin – how did he become one of the world's most famous authors? And who really wrote those wonderful works of litera-ture? Well, wonder no more; it's all explained in the current play at the Greenbelt Arts Center, "The Beard of Avon."

As the play begins, Will, as Shakespeare is called in the play, is completely unhappy with his life – he has no money, he's stuck in quiet Stratford and is married to a shrewish wife Anne Hathaway. Even so, in one of many surprises of the play, he performs several soliloquies that are, well, Shakespearean in tone and depth.

Will and Anne go to see a play performed in the town and Will becomes instantly mesmer-ized by the theater. After yet another argument with Anne and feeling he has nothing to lose, he runs away with the troupe to become an actor.

So begins Will's adventure in a fast-moving story full of many laughs and surprises. It is a bit loose with historical accuracy but lots of fun. The story is told through many short scenes that occasionally seem disjointed but come together nicely for a warm ending. First performed in New York in 2001, the play is very cleverly written.

As expected of GAC, all the acting is great. Zachary Brew-ster-Geisz is a wonderful Will. He portrays perfectly all the emo-tions of a man whose life com-pletely changes in a short amount of time. Melissa B. Robinson makes a great Anne Hathaway and Sandy Irving as the Earl of Oxford is impeccable.

The play is not appropriate for children as sexual situations are portrayed.

"The Beard of Avon" will play on Friday and Saturday evenings, January 18 and 19, 25 and 26 and February 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. Two Sunday matinees are sched-uled for January 20 and 27 at 2 p.m. Reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Arts Center, 123 Centerway, below the Co-op supermarket.

On Friday, January 18 from 6:30 to 7:45 p.m. John Guernsey will play jazz and blues piano to accompany dinner. Following that, the highlight of the upcoming weekend is a group of local bands at 8 p.m. with "Play With Me," "The Able Birds," "The Late Greats" plus the debut performance of local filmmaker Joe Harris' as-yet-unnamed band. "We've got a stand-up bass, an accordion, a mandolin, a viola, a guitar and a Washington, D.C.-based singer/songwriter with strong roots in American traditional music styles but a sound all his own. On one of the songs a guy plays the saw." The band is comprised mostly of Greenbelters, so café organizers are hoping to have the support of the town, urging people to come out to see a Greenbelt group. Be a part of the local music scene and also participate in the "name the band" contest.

On Saturday, January 19 John Guernsey plays jazz and blues piano for diners from 6:30 to 7:45 p.m. At 8 p.m., Washington, D.C.-based singer/songwriter Mike Elish brings original rootsy folk, "Like Dylan in the 60s," to the Café with strong roots in American traditional music styles but a sound all his own.

The focus groups will meet for two-hour sessions to help shape GAIL's programs, including the role of technology.

The first group will discuss current GAIL programs to empower them to age in place with minimal barriers to services. The second group, the first wave of Greenbelt baby boomers, will determine their expectations for aging services.

To participate in a focus group call the Greenbelt CARES office at 301-345-6660. Registration will begin February 4 at 10 a.m.

Reel and Meal At the New Deal

The film, "The Next Industrial Revolution" will be shown at the New Deal Café on Monday, January 21 beginning at 7 p.m. The Reel and Meal at the New Deal is a monthly film series that explores vital environmental and social issues and is sponsored by several Greenbelt organizations interested in preserving the environment. There is no charge for admission. An optional vegan buffet meal will be available for purchase starting at 6:30 p.m.

This film explores how businesses are transforming themselves to work with nature and enhance profitability. While some environmental observers predict doomsday scenarios in which a rapidly increasing human population is forced to compete for ever scarcer natural resources, architect Bill McDonough sees a more exciting and hopeful future. In his vision humanity takes nature itself as the guide to reinventing technical enterprises to be as safe and ever-renewing as natural processes.

There will be a discussion following the film. Call Steve Kane at 301-437-8814 for more information.

St. Hugh's Celebrates 60th Anniversary of Founding

by Kathleen McFarland

On December 16, St. Hugh of Grenoble parish commemorated the 60th anniversary of its founding with a special mass and dinner. The mass was celebrated by Bishop Martin Holley of the Archdiocese of Washington. Four members of Sisters of the Holy Cross who had taught at St. Hugh's School were in attendance at the mass and the "Gaudete Sunday" dinner which followed in the church hall.

Gaudete, or "joyful" Sunday, is the third Sunday of Advent, when the rose-colored candle on the Advent wreath is lit to signify that Christmas will soon be here. At the dinner in the decorated hall Bishop Holley gave a blessing and offered congratulations.

In a short program Father Walter Tappe, pastor of St. Hugh's, gave a brief history of the parish. He told how Father Victor Dowgiallo was sent to Greenbelt to establish the new parish in June 1947. Before that time Greenbelt had been a mission church of Holy Redeemer in Berwyn.

Father Dowgiallo chose the name of the new parish to honor an uncle or mentor (the story varies) named Hugh. There are at least 10 saints named Hugh. "While not on anyone's list of the 100 best-known saints," Father Tappe said, "St. Hugh of Grenoble, France, a bishop who lived in the 12th century, was a good and much-loved man." The church hall is named Grenoble Hall because of this connection.

Father Tappe then invited longtime parishioner Margaret Zanin to the podium. Zanin told of the "olden days" when Greenbelt Catholics attended mass in the town theater. "You just haven't lived until you've gone to mass in a theater," she said, giving an amusing account of marching up the steps and across the stage to receive Holy Communion and then, back at her seat, trying to kneel on a sloping floor.

Later on when mass was held in the newly built school, the troubles continued. There, metal kneeling benches attached to the folding chairs made loud clanking sounds at inappropriate times and, if not aligned correctly, were prone to buckling under, toppling the praying person onto the floor.

Teaching Sisters

Zanin recounted the problems of transporting the sisters who came to staff the school, back and forth each day from the convent in the 58 Court of Crescent Road, since at that time they were not allowed to drive. Sometimes they walked or Father Dowgiallo, who lived in another unit of 58 Court, drove them. Later, a committee of mothers took turns driving the sisters to and from school until finally they were given permission to drive themselves.

She told of the many fund-raising efforts – bake sales, fashion shows, pledge drives – which were held, first to get money to build the school in 1949, then the Rectory and, finally, St. Hugh's real church. In 1964 she attended the official dedication of the new church and remembers how proud Father Dowgiallo was of it. Zanin ended with the hope that another celebration will be held for the 65th anniversary – not the 75th – because she wants to be around to attend it.

Next, Sister St. Hugh, one of the original group of sisters who came in 1949, said a few words. She gave a very funny account of the embarrassment the sisters suffered before they got a clothes dryer: They had to hang their wash, including undergarments, out on the line to dry. She said of Father Dowgiallo, "He was rough but he was kind to us."

The other sisters who attended the celebration were Sister Maris, a school principal in the 1960s; Sister Vivian, who taught in the 1950s under her old name, Sister Michael Anthony; and Sister Elizabeth Raffo, principal from 1975 to 1984. All four sisters now live at St. Angela's Hall in Kensington; some have part-time volunteer jobs in area schools.

Several alumni of the school then took the microphone. Kathy Labukas and Patty Madden Molden, both of the class of 1964, told amusing tales of their school days. Theirs was the first class to hold their graduation ceremony in the new church. Judy Holland, class of 1954, the very first graduating class, who had started out at Holy Redeemer school, remarked at how the years had flown by. She said that this year she is looking forward to the 50th reunion of her Notre Dame High School class of 1958.

The 100 or so attendees then finished their delicious dinner, prepared and served by Gloria Winfrey and her crew of teenagers and ladies of the Sodality, and sang Christmas carols accompanied by accordionist Phil Ventura. Father Tappe thanked the committee of Cindy Perry, Beth Osborne, Marti Galvin and all who had helped to make the day so memorable.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor.

– The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Count your blessings every day. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

He has worked with the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission as well as the University of Maryland, where he served as a horticultural extension educator for many years. He retired in 2003 but still finds time to teach classes in the Master Gardener Program. He has amassed a collection of over 300 potted plants on a three-acre plot in Charles County.

Plants will be offered for the door prizes and refreshments will be served. The public is welcome and admission is free. For details, call Louise DeJames at 301-890-4733 or visit www.beltsvillegardenclub.org.

was no Freecycle group here, she decided to start one. With some help from the Bowie group, she made it “official” and now she says “It’s been amazing watching the whole idea grow in the last three years.”

Most of the items listed in the group come from Greenbelt but there are also postings from nearby cities such as College Park and New Carrollton. Recent postings include offers of floor lamps, a film camera, a bread-maker, cans of cat food, a Welsh flag and a party game.

Thanks to Freecycle, our old couch has gone on to its fourth home, as did an old but much-loved armchair. My overcrowded irises were divided and given out to about a dozen different people. Outgrown baby things found new use in other homes and so did numerous other items. It was a good feeling to clear out that clutter and know that other people were enjoying those things. We also acquired a boy’s bike, plants, herbal tea and a few other odds and ends. And so the circle of giving was complete.

How to Join Greenbelt Freecycle

To join the local Greenbelt branch of Freecycle, go to <http://finance.groups.yahoo.com/group/freecyclegreenbelt/> or simply Google “Freecycle Network Maryland” then click on Greenbelt. Once you have joined, you can post messages offering the items you have to give away. For example, the subject might be “OFFER: couch, Old Greenbelt,” with a few more details in the body of the message. Very soon, often within minutes, emails start arriving from people willing to come and pick up those things you no longer need.

So think before you throw anything in the trash! Could a local artist use those broken dishes for a mosaic? Might a child enjoy playing with those little plastic containers? It’s worth sending out an email on Freecycle first, to see if someone else can use them.

The philosophy behind Freecycle is summed up in the mission statement of the Freecycle Network: “Our mission is to build a worldwide gifting movement that reduces waste, saves precious resources and eases the burden on our landfills while enabling our members to benefit from the strength of a larger community.” It is a win-win situation for all!

If you always give, you will always have!

NASA FCU Has Formal Ribbon Cutting

December 10 was the grand opening for the new NASA Federal Credit Union’s (FCU) Greenbelt branch at 10280 Greenbelt Road. Community members, executives from NASA and the Maryland-DC Credit Union Association, officials and guests from the county joined the NASA Federal Board of Directors and staff to commemorate the official opening of the new full service branch with a ceremonial ribbon cutting. More than 4,000 credit union members live within a mile and a half radius of the Greenbelt Branch.

“This is our branch of the future,” said NASA Federal President and CEO Douglas M. Allman. “This new branch office will help us better serve the needs of our growing membership in the Prince George’s County and Greenbelt market areas. This building was designed to create a unique member service-oriented environment versus what you might find at a traditional financial institution. The space allows for more personalized interactions, enhanced efficiency and prudent use of leading-edge technologies to streamline transactions. We are excited about our flagship branch and the additional level of services it will provide to our existing and future members.”

“The credit union is equally proud of the eco-friendly features inherent in the branch’s construction,” Allman continued, “including a metal roof that used 50 percent less material, is 47 percent cheaper to maintain and reduces energy costs by having 45 percent less heat gain in the summer, the use of energy-efficient glass and light fixtures throughout and a natural gas generator, to name a few. And the building provides the infrastructure to meet our future growth needs.”

Twenty employees will staff the branch, including representatives to help members with investments, business services and mortgages. The branch is open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., on Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The new branch was designed with the latest in high-tech equipment for greater efficiencies and enhanced member service. For example, dialogue banking service counters enable NASA FCU staff to interact side-by-side with members, cash/coin dispensing machines complete transactions faster and more efficiently, ATMs take deposits and cash, safe deposit boxes are equipped with biometric security, a self-service coin machine makes it easier to deposit spare change, plus Internet workstations are available for member use and a meeting room is open for community outreach activities.

NASA FCU is a not-for-profit financial cooperative owned entirely by its members and operated for the benefit of all who belong. Chartered in 1949, NASA FCU serves the diverse needs of 68,000 members worldwide with a full array of financial services and the strength of more than $870 million in assets.

Winditan, Niger

I'm writing this from our home in Winditan. We moved here two days ago, even though the latrine was not finished. Actually, the latrine had not been started. And there wasn't a latch on the door to our hut. But there were posts for our concession (yard) fence. And putting the latch on the door was quick. And the latrine is done – mostly.

We are busy setting up our house, figuring out what next to purchase (like a bed frame for our mattress) and how to get food and water. We are also learning to cope with the heat. It is not hot enough to melt candles but it will be a month from now.

Winditan has a small shop where we can buy rice, oil, onions, batteries and cards for adding minutes to our cell phone. Winditan doesn't have electricity so I wonder how people charge their cell phones. We will charge our cell phone with a solar panel and batteries. I added an 11 Ahr motorcycle battery to our two 1.3 Ahr dry cells which we brought with us.

Most of what we want we can buy in Balleyara, four miles up the road from Winditan. Also in Balleyara is a Peace Corps (PC) transit house and our post office. If we run out of money, we have to go to Niamey [capital city] to withdraw money from our bank account.

Routine

Our first month in Winditan has been very busy. We have been setting up house and establishing a routine. Bri cooks and sweeps. I wash the dishes and clothes and fetch the water. Two weeks ago we bought our bed frame which we had ordered a month ago. Now we sleep outside since it is much cooler than inside, which is intolerably hot for sleeping this time of year. The highs have been around 115° F and the lows maybe 79° F. It felt cold enough to need a blanket the first couple of nights but not now. We tuck our mosquito net under our mattress in order to keep the scorpions out. We've seen two scorpions so far – they were two inches long and translucent white. There is also a smaller, black scorpion which has a nastier sting. I don't know which one is more likely to crawl into our bed.

We've also seen a snake and a chariot spider. The snake was dark gray, about a foot long and as thick as my finger. It was exciting our kitchen as I was about to enter. What timing! The snake turned around. Bri wanted to kill the snake but I wanted to follow PC procedure and summon the neighbors to kill the snake. Bri consented and the neighbors killed the snake quite easily and then threw the carcass into a nearby garbay tree. Our neighbors laughed at my jitteriness over the next couple of days. The chariot spider is so named because they carry scorpions ons on their back. The one we saw was small – only as big as my hand. Chariot spiders are translucent white and very fast. The one we saw ran up Bri's back and down her front before she could react.

A Visit

PC Volunteers Geoffrey and Christine visited one night, Geoffrey rode his bike 90 km (55 miles) from Niamey. They brought us pineapple and mangos. It was a great visit.

We went to the market in Balleyara where Geoffrey who loves marketing and bargaining helped us buy some bowls, a metal bucket and a wooden mortar for pounding grain. Our neighbor's tenaged nephew transported our purchases the 4 miles from Baleyara to Winditan on his donkey cart. He carried the mortar on his head from the market to his cart. He has also carried a table, a metal chest and water for us. Our neighbors built our concession wall out of millet stalks and loaned us a mattress for our guests.

Yesterday our neighbors put the door on our kitchen hut after they had finished the roof. I've been clearing the garden and watering a few plants. I've planted watermelon, pumpkin, amaranth greens (mchicha) and another native plant for greens and transplanted hot peppers. Bri and I planted sweet potatoes and she started a tree nursery. I transplanted some garbay trees which had sprouted in my neighbors' garden bed. My neighbors are growing hot/rainy-season tomatoes which I'm hoping to grow too.

Watering

Watering is hard because I have to carry the water uphill from my neighbor's well.

I'm hoping to build a cistern so that the water can be pumped into my garden. Our neighbors have a gasoline engine for pumping the water out of their well and underground plastic pipe for distributing the water to their garden. They also have a 10-foot-tall cistern for storing water for a low-pressure drip irrigation system.

I had a meeting with my neighbors to talk about saving money by buying gasoline in bulk instead of a litre at a time as they are now doing. Based on their use estimates, I think they could reduce their gasoline costs substantially. Next we need to figure out how to safely store 50 gallons of gasoline. When we return to Winditan, I'm going to talk with them about machine maintenance. I'm not an expert but I understand the operating manual, so maybe I can help. I'm not excited about the gasoline engine-based water system but that is what they have. Is it worse than a nuclear electric-based water system? I'll be looking for an alternative.

City Notes

Animal Control staff placed one dog for adoption, removed a bat from Greenbelt Elementary School, responded to several wildlife calls and picked up two cats from evicted tenants.

The Planning Department researched various issues relating to the request for the city to provide support services to the start-up of a farmers market in the parking lot of Roosevelt Center.

Public Works staff has moved to a temporary office trailer. Preparations for razing the old office and trailer are underway by the general contractor. Staff met with the architect, the general contractor, planning staff and another contractor to discuss the layout of the geothermal wells for heating and air conditioning for the administrative office. With the new retaining wall in place, some additional grading continued.

Museum Features Aviation Posters

Saturday, January 19 is the last day to view an exhibit of 40 aviation posters from the National Air and Space Museum at the College Park Aviation Museum. Dated from 1860 to the present, these posters represent many countries. This exhibit is included in the normal museum admission fee.
